Local author is a motorbike-riding daredevil

SANDY VAILE, a South Australian author of romantic suspense with robust heroines, is pleased to announce the release of her debut novel, Inheriting Fear, published by Crimson Romance.

Mya is a biker chic who is being hunted. She is forced to rely on her new neighbour, Detective Patterson, to stay alive. But is she a victim, or his best suspect? It will be a battle of wills between them as they fight for survival, with a climax that will leave you breathless.

Inheriting Fear was inspired by Sandy's own motorbike riding passion and love of adventure. She drew on personal experience in the hospitality industry, and of the devastation of alcoholism on families, to make Mya a tough character that uses her inner strength to overcome adversity.

Numerous five-star reviews reveal how readers are relating to Mya's tenacious character and Detective Patterson's determination to unearth the truth about her.

The book was released on 16 February 2015 and is available from all good eBook stores, with a print-on-demand version from Amazon.com. Crimson Romance is an eBook first imprint of F+W Media Inc and publishes in a variety of romances subgenres. For more information, visit www.crimsonromance.com.
